CHOOSE YOUR BANKING PRODUCTS WISELY

Banking Services

At Bank Gaborone we understand that we are dealing with unique individuals that have specific financial needs. Therefore, Bank Gaborone has a wide range of savings, investment, loan, transactional and current account products and services. Our clients can choose to conduct their day-to-day banking business through our branches or channels such as ATMs.

When choosing a product, it is important that you consider your daily banking behaviour and your financial needs in order to provide you with the best possible financial advice and to match your needs with the current products available. It is also important to choose the appropriate channels through which you transact to suit your needs, so that you optimize the use of the available banking facilities in the most cost effective manner.

A common mistake is to use a savings account as a transaction account and vice versa. Therefore, we would advise you not to open a savings account if your intention is to make frequent withdrawals from the account or to link debit and stop orders to the account. Rather open a transaction account that provides more flexibility and accessibility than your traditional savings account and which gives you most of the benefits of a cheque account. The transaction account does, however, not have a cheque book, so if you would like to use cheques, then it is better to apply for one of Bank Gaborone's range of cheque accounts.

Notice and fixed deposits offer you higher returns than savings accounts. The interest rate that you earn on notice and fixed deposits is determined by the length of your investment period as well as the amounts of money that you are invest. Furthermore you earn more interest on a fixed deposit than on a notice deposit. If you know that you will not withdraw your funds for a certain period of time, rather opt for investing your money in a fixed deposit than keeping your money in a savings account so that you can earn more interest.

Bank Gaborone will address the needs of our clients by making our products, services and channels relevant, affordable and accessible. We see ourselves as your financial partner, and we would like you to make informed decisions when choosing a bank account and other products and services.
